The two annexes to the peace treaty between Israel and Jordan expire today

10 Nov 2019

The two annexes to the peace treaty between Israel and Jordan that established the special regimes in Naharayim/Bakura and Tzofar/Al Ghamr expire today. Israel regrets Jordan's decision to terminate the annexes.

(Communicated by the MFA Spokesperson)

Today, November 10th, 2019, the two annexes to the peace treaty between Israel and Jordan that established the special regimes in Naharayim/Bakura and Tzofar/Al Ghamr will expire, and Jordanian law will apply in full. Israel regrets Jordan's decision to terminate the annexes.

The Government of Jordan will continue to respect private ownership rights in Naharayim. Regarding Tzofar, the government of Jordan will allow Israeli farmers to harvest the crops that were planted before the annex expired.