Dear Mr. Lack,

I refer to our recent discussion concerning Jews from Middle Eastern and North African countries who have left or are unable or unwilling to return to these countries in consequence of recent events. I am now able to inform you that such persons may be considered prima facie within the mandate of this Office. This would not, however, be the case if they possessed the nationality of a country other than that of their formal habitual residence and have no reason for not wishing to avail themselves of that other country's protection.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

Dr. E. Jahn
